Let The Games Begin!

As we move down the tournament trail, we need to appreciate the opportunity to play these games while realizing the end result is not an all-or-nothing proposition. The sun will come up tomorrow for all participants and teams, and one of the lasting lessons of school sports is the outcome of a game or competition is never life-defining.

All too often, the immense pressure of winning or losing is brought to bear on kids and coaches – and that's just not fair. There's no doubt we all want to win, but in sports – just like in life – you can't win all the time.

Many times, the most valuable lessons in sports and in life don't come after wins and success. It's getting back up after you have been knocked down, knowing that a temporary setback never defines a person in the long-term. That is what is important. That is what's life-defining.

Enjoy the game- and remember what's most important today.

MHSAA Executive Director
